A Little Tallow History

Did you know chefs have been sculpting tallow for over 300 years? Back in the early days of the 17th century, chefs would sculpt butter into provocative shapes for the visual enjoyment of their patrons. Imagine the difficulty of this task without the convenience of refrigeration! In an effort to make life easier, the chefs of Europe began to combine butter with animal fats and later, with wax, to create a stabilized, creamy sculpting medium that was easier to work with and had a much greater shelf life. Because patrons reacted just as enthusiastically to these “faux” butter sculptures, chefs all over the world embraced this new medium and called it “tallow”, referring to the animal fat used in its production.

Culinart, Inc. has taken this time honored art form and, while adhering to traditional, old world formulas, improved upon it by incorporating non-yellowing, food grade waxes and only purified beef fat to create tallow that has a perfect consistency and an indefinite shelf life at room temperature.

Modeling Method

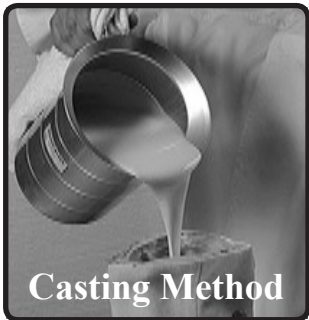

Modern Tallow

Modern tallow, when worked by hand, quickly softens to the consistency of artist’s clay. It can be manipulated into any shape or built up on any support structure to create sculptures of amazing size and complexity. Modern tallow can be added to or taken off and trimmed with tools and knives until perfection is achieved.

Modern tallow is also suitable for any tallow project that involves carving with tools and sharp knives to produce a finished sculpture. Modern tallow is ideal for intricate detail work, producing sculptures of impressive durability. Modern tallow is available in white, butter, cheddar or chocolate.

Carving Method

Casting Method

Casting Tallow

An extremely firm tallow that cannot be softened by hand and requires great effort to carve on any large scale. It is intended to be melted and poured into molds to produce the final sculpture. Its resulting hardness makes casting tallow ideal for the sometimes rigorous unmolding process, especially with one piece rubber molds. Available in white, butter, cheddar and chocolate.

White Tallow

A blend of purified beef fat and highly refined, food grade waxes to create an ivory tallow with indefinite shelf life. Available in modern and casting tallow.

50lb. Block $180.00

Chocolate Tallow

Real chocolate is blended with tallow to create a stable, non-blooming sculpting medium with the color, fragrance, and shine of real chocolate. Available in modern and casting tallow.

25lb. Block $120.00
50lb. Block $220.00

Butter Tallow

Looks like real butter! Natural butter coloring agents are added to the tallow to give it the look of real butter. Available in modern and casting tallow.

Culinart Hot Knife

This amazing tool has a 6" heated blade that glides right through styrofoam, enabling the user to accomplish the most intricate carving in styrofoam.

Culinart Hot Knife $89.00

Styro Glue

Apply Styro Glue to permanently repair Styrofoam or attach wings, arms, or legs to the styrofoam structure.

Styro Glue $5.00 per pound

Carvable Block of Styrofoam

Swan carved from block with chainsaw

Finished Swan using modeling tallow

Real Carvable Styrofoam

Real Styrofoam is a light, strong, clean and repairable material that can greatly conserve the amount of tallow used in large sculpting projects, making it the preferred choice of chefs worldwide. The white rigid foam can be carved effortlessly with chainsaws, knives, hand saws, sandpaper, die-grinders, etc., just like a block of ice. Once the styrofoam is carved, it serves as an excellent support for the application of modeling tallow. This is not the low grade type of styrofoam that is made of compressed beads.

Real Carvable Styrofoam 1 Block (40" H x 24" W x 10" D) $145.00

Chef's Silicone Plastique

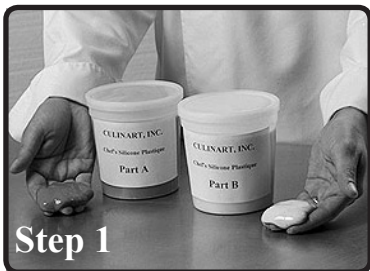

Now you can make your own custom silicone molds in a fraction of the time it takes with conventional silicone.

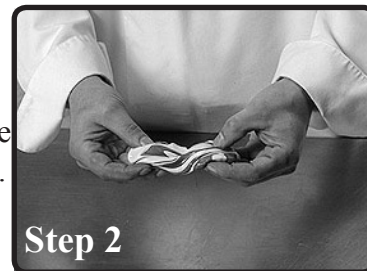

Silicone plastique is not a liquid, but instead has the consistency of dough. It can be applied by hand to almost any surface or rolled out between two sheets of wax paper. Cure time is only one hour to yield a pliable, yet durable, rubber mold that is suitable for direct food contact. Silicone Plastique resists temperatures below freezing and up to 450 degrees F. Because you apply only the amount you need, you save on quantity of silicone used compared to liquid silicones. Very Cost Effective. Absolutely perfect for chocolate, butter, tallow, cheese, poured sugar, gelatine, pastillage, hippen and ice molding.

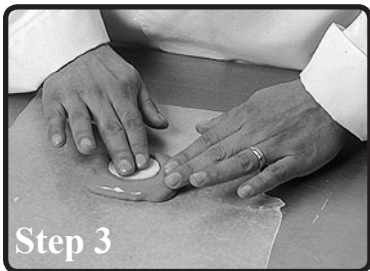

How easy is the Chef's Silicone Plastique to use? Just look....

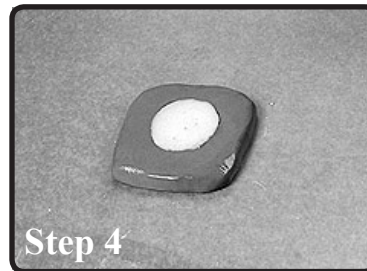

Chef's Silicone Plastique has the consistency of clay. Equal amounts of Part A (blue) and Part B (white) are scaled by weight or volume.

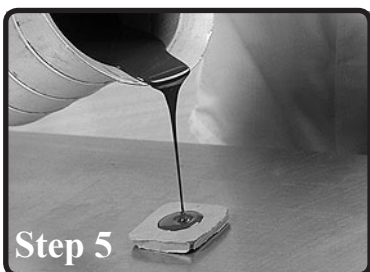

Parts A and B are combined and kneaded until uniform color is achieved. Silicone Plastique can be flattened by hand or rolled with a pin between sheets of wax paper.

A small amount of plastique is rubbed into detail of medallion. Medallion is pressed into Plastique that has been rolled out twice the thickness of the medallion.

Silicone Plastique has a work time of about 20-30 minutes and a cure time of about an hour at room temperature, and should be allowed to fully cure before removing medallion.

The desired material is poured into cured mold.

With a flex of the mold, a perfect chocolate copy of medallion pops out of mold, ready to garnish your favorite dessert.
